EDITORIAL

THE RUSHING agreement last Fall was drawn up and adopted by the representatives of thirty-six houses, and subsequently ratified by the individual chapters. Since its adoption, other fraternities have ratified it and become members of the Interfraternity Council.

Early last spring at the request of the Student Board, Secretary Frank D. Fackenthal called a meeting of the heads of the houses. After several meetings, at which the unsatisfactory existing conditions of rushing were discussed, it was the unanimous opinion of the fraternity heads that a rushing agreement was desirable. The present agreement was the result.

The agreement is to a certain extent the outgrowth of the older agreement. For many years the formation of an Interfraternity Council and the formulation of rushing and pledging rules have been considered. In 1917 a start was made. An organization was formed and tentative rushing rules proposed, but they were not adopted. They were, however, simply a step in the direction of what is generally understood by the term "rushing agreement." They forbade initiation in a school other than Extension, and required men to have passed at least twelve points work in the mid-term before they might be initiated.

The new rules went much farther. They very definitely prohibited the rushing of Freshmen in any manner until the Monday preceding Thanksgiving, the date last fall being November 23.

A rushing period of about three weeks then followed, during which time the Freshmen were entertained by the various houses in about the same way as under the old system. During the period earlier in the fall, when rushing was forbidden, the fraternity members, of course, had opportunity to look over the Freshman class, while the Freshmen were able to learn a good deal about the various fraternities. When the rushing began an opportunity was offered to fraternity men and Freshmen to become acquainted in a personal way.

The method of bidding was somewhat unusual. On Thursday, Dec. 10, each fraternity submitted to the Chairman of the Council, Mr. Frank D. Fackenthal, a list of the Freshmen whom it wished to bid, together with envelopes containing sealed formal bids addressed to the several men whose names appeared on the list. The Chairman assorted the bids and forwarded each Freshman's bids to him in a large envelope, arranging for him to receive them on Saturday, Dec. 12. On that date the rushing stopped.

On Monday evening, Dec. 14, the Freshmen indicated their acceptance of bids by going to the houses of the fraternities they wished to join.

The rushing agreement contained, of course, exact specifications to take care of all contingencies. It also specified that a Freshman shall have passed twelve hours work at the mid-terms in order to be eligible for bidding. It provided that the Chairman of the Council shall be the Secretary of the University and the Vice-Chairman the Dean of Columbia College. On the Council each fraternity is represented by one delegate.

The penalties for infractions were an interesting part of the agreement. Provision was made for the organization of a special Investigating Committee, appointed by the Chairman, which "shall consider violations of the spirit and provisions of this agreement." This committee was to report to the Council which was to decide the question of guilt, a three-fourths vote being necessary for conviction.

The penalty for the guilty fraternity was provided for as follows: "If any fraternity signatory to this agreement shall be adjudged by the Council to have violated any portion of said agreement, that fraternity shall be punished by any part or combination of parts of this section." A Committee on Penalties, consisting of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Council, and Chairman of the special investigation committee, shall decide upon and inflict the penalty.

"A. The fraternity shall be suspended from the Interfraternity Council for the remainder of the college year. Suspension shall include: the removal of the privilege of pledging and initiating any undergraduate and annulment of all campus privileges, while the Dean, at his discretion, may withdraw the sanction to the use of the house as a residence for students of Columbia College.

"B. The name of the offending fraternity shall be published in Spectator.

"C. The national organization of the fraternity shall be notified of the offense and penalty."

On the other hand, the Freshman who violated the agreement by accepting a bid contrary to its provisions "shall remain unpledged to the remainder of the year, and his name shall be published in Spectator."

This in substance was the rushing agreement which went into effect in Columbia at the opening of the present session. The reasons for its adoption were that it would benefit the houses—which it did not; that the first year men would have become knit together into a class unit before they joined a fraternity. This proved so true that many of the Freshmen decided not to join any fraternity. The houses were to have an opportunity to look over the entire class and select their prospects more carefully, the College profiting from the benefit to the Freshmen and the fraternities.

When sealed bids were extended on Dec. 11 only three hundred and thirteen out of four hundred and fifty Freshmen were scholastically eligible, that number having passed twelve points at mid-terms. One hundred and eighty-two of these received bids to fraternities and about one hundred of them accepted, the remainder returning all bids sent them. At that time it was felt that a number of Freshmen had put off joining fraternities until they were sure where their class-mates were going.

On January 4th the representatives of the Campus fraternities met and by a vote of 25 to 3, voted to set aside the provisions of the Interfraternity Agreement forbidding the pledging of scholastically eligible men. It was the unanimous opinion of the delegates that the provision should be amended to allow pledging of all men after mid-terms. Consequently, when the suggestion was made that the clause be suspended to permit the pledging of the large number of eligibles, it was easily passed. A committee has been appointed to consider changes in the Agreement, particularly along the lines of length of rushing period, eligibility requirement for pledging, and method of extending bids.

The ultimate result of the experiment this year is going to be very interesting. Just what it will be no one can at this time predict. There are fewer fraternity men in the Freshman class at Columbia in proportion to the number of fraternities than there ever have been and in every fraternity group one hears much discussion regarding the future.
